

MAP
HB
1952
.583
1987
C.2

ABSTRACT

Questionnaire-generated data from 128 1963 graduates from a dozen rural Nebraska high schools are used to describe and interpret their migration behavior during the ensuing 22 years.

To a substantial degree, the migration behavior of the study population duplicates the conventional wisdom as it appears in the

I have uncovered no statistically verifiable explanation for the fact that the results are significantly greater than expected